Meet Our Interns and Volunteers.

Ruth Kwagala

Hi my name is Ruth kwagala, am an intern from African Renewal University, Seeing the children's determination despite their physical challenges taught me patience, inclusive teaching and the power of adaptive strategies. This internship reshaped my understanding and ability and resilience in education

Alisandra Pastore

"I'm Alessandra, I come from Italy and I'm a speech therapist volunteer here. This school is a nice and safe place for the children and the people who work inside are an example of empathy and love for other."

My name is Kavuma Ken, volunteering at Kampala School for the Physically Handicapped. It is a school for special children. Here, we say disability is not inability. It is a great environment with great experience. Here, children are very happy and very willing to learn. I urge you to come join us

Ken Kavuma

Hi, my name is Rieneke, an intern at KSPH. I'm 20 and I'm from the Netherlands. In the morning I assist the teachers in P2. In the afternoon I give the children diverse types of therapy depending on what they need. I really like this school because the children and staff are amazing and I learn a lot from and with them.

Ella

My name is Ella (19) and I'm from Germany. I am currently volunteering as a long-term volunteer at the school, where I spend time in the classrooms and the physiotherapy department. I really enjoy the warm atmosphere and working together with the children and staff. Everyday brings new experiences, and I am very grateful for the opportunity to be part of this wonderful community and for everything I have learned here.

I'm Nakachwa Miriam, an intern, What I am excited about in this school is the way children are loving, caring for one another. Group A class is very much eager to learn and love their confidence in class. The team work of the children, the staff and non-teaching staff makes the environment so conducive for all of us and me personally.

Nimusiima Esther

My name is Nimusiima Esther, an internee from Africa Renewal university. It's been a great privilege working at this school, the energy and love of the children towards one another challenges me the most. They prove the meaning of differently abled. It's always such a great honor being guided by the staff in all spheres while around the school.
